EIDOS - OFURO BATHTUB

Eidos is the result of a collaboration between Vaselli and Kensaku Oshiro which has lasted over two years, summing up the careful preparation and research done with the designer in the search of a new shape, becoming totally immersed in the reality of the Rapolano area and its travertine stone.

The unusual softness of the lines that shape Eidos is an expression of Oshiro's intent to let the alternating three-dimensional play of light and shadow outline the volumes, drawing shapes that are not limited to the function of the elements, always guided by deep respect deriving from the awareness of working with an ancient material such as stone.
